

AVENUE

NEW YORK CLASSICS

photographed by Sophie Elgort

No one knows New York City's history better than those at the top of the real estate game. The movers and shakers here are the guardians to the city's most coveted addresses. Where better to showcase them than at two treasured New York properties? Philip Colleck, Ltd., an antiques dealer, is located in one of the last pre-Civil War freestanding houses, and Hirschl & Adler Galleries is situated in the renowned Crown Building.

hair by Maricela Cruz and Michell Mateo

makeup by Heidi Evora-Santiago, Karen Duncan and Edward Powell for Damali NYC

shot at Hirschl & Adler Galleries and Philip Colleck, Ltd.

MAY 2013 • AVENUE MAGAZINE

SOTHEBY'S INTERNATIONAL REALTY
Ellie Johnson, Senior Vice President and Brokerage Manager
Kathryn Korte, President and Chief Executive Officer
Diane Levine, Senior Vice President
and Brokerage Manager

Inside Philip Colleck, Ltd., Johnson and Levine sit on a Pair of Blue And White Porcelain Garden Seats from the 19th Century and in front of a 17th Century Four Panel
Chinoiserie Painted Leather Screen, c. 1690.

SOTHEBY'S INTERNATIONAL REALTY
Nikki Field, Senior Vice President and Associate Broker

Field stands before A Rare Queen Anne Burl Walnut Secrétaire Bookcase made For Walton Hall in Derbyshire in 1705 and holds an Ormolu and Blue John Cassolette made by Matthew Boulton, c. 1780, at Philip Colleck, Ltd.