Located in the Loughlin Park neighborhood of Cos Cob, the three-bedroom single-family home at 99 Loughlin Ave. is on the market. Amy Whitlaw of Sotheby’s International Realty in Greenwich is the listing agent for the $1.169 property.

When Whitlaw’s clients, the current owners, bought the property in the late 1990s, they immediately appreciated the location. It was both convenient to commute in to New York City and close to local parks, the seller recalled by way of email.

Built in 1986, the house was still relatively new then and had some built-in flexibility, which allowed the new owners to settle in and tailor it expressly to their family’s preferences. Over time, they made some additional improvements to the property, including redesigning the gardens and landscaping. They added new stone steps and a patio, a new deck and new fencing.

Inside, they added Spanish tiles and a new mantel to the fireplace. In the living room, they installed a new picture window, “bringing outside in,” the seller explained.

The kitchen received all new cabinets with a rounded profile and curved edges and high-end appliances from Sub-Zero, Wolf and Thermador. The tiled backsplash, Italian farmhouse-style sink, island, chandelier and recessed lighting complete the design.

One of the seller’s favorite features of the house is the hardwood flooring throughout — “in perfect condition,” she noted.

Another favorite? The open two-story ceiling above the living room, which connects the space to the second-level loft overhead. The living room also has a wood-burning fireplace.

This home is equal parts contemporary and traditional, lending itself to transitional furnishings. The floor plan affords 2,264 square feet of living space, with the living room, eat-in kitchen and a dining area that opens out to an expansive deck.

The house has three bedrooms, including the master suite, located on the first floor. The second level is where the remaining two bedrooms are, a full hall bath, a sitting area and a family room. Off of the attached two-car garage, there’s unfinished basement with plenty of room for storage.

The owners have invested a lot of time and care in the landscaping, including adding a bounty of perennials.

The 0.19-acre property puts three parks within easy reach: Cos Cob Park, Bruce Park and Loughlin Avenue Park, where there’s “the best baseball field in town, with tennis courts,” the owner noted. The family also enjoyed walking to Cos Cob’s Hugh
